

entry features

description

christopher consultants' landscape architects and planners are skilled at designing entryways and gateway features to various scales and materials that are integrated within the overall project landscape plan and the existing fabric of the site environment. Our services include concept design through to the preparation of final construction drawings.

While an entryway is often one of the last components of a project to be completed, it is the first impression for residents, visitors or employees as they enter a community or other site. Not only does it signify the entrance to the community and identify the property, it sets the tone for the look and feel of the place itself.

project types

- Planned communities
- Office parks
- Schools
- Churches